

Rosetta Song: John

Step 1: John signs in using the email and password he was provided by his family. He knows he must input his email and password since it says to log in using both of those. He knows it worked because it took him to the next page where he must sign into any music service he wants his playlists to be from

Step 2: John knows he must press login on one of the login bars to sign into his YouTube account, however, he is unsure where to input his email and password since when he clicks to log in nothing appears afterward, he is confused about where to go next from here

Step 3: After figuring out where to sign into his YouTube account, it takes him to another page where he can see all the playlists he has made in his YouTube account. He knows that in this section he can transfer his music playlist to his music streaming application. However, when he clicks on the playlist he wants, nothing appears in front of him to ask him if he confirms this is the playlist he wants to transfer. He worries that if it does not ask him and he clicks the wrong playlist he will start to add music he does not want. John is unsure if he will be doing the correct thing since there is no confirmation of what he is doing